New Community Hospital Opened by the Premier

Wetaskiwin's new Community Hospital was officially opened on Tuesday afternoon, by Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta. He was accompanied by Dr. McGugan of the Department of Health and Dr. Braithwaite, Inspector of hospitals for the Province. After expressing his appreciation of the courtesy of being invited to take part in the ceremonies he cheerfully congratulated the Board in bringing to completion such a very fine building, and to all the people of the two municipalities in having such a very fine hospital in its midst. He also referred to the very fine spirit of co-operation which prevailed between the people of the country and the citizens of Wetaskiwin. He was also pleased with the location of the site, as when the park and hospital grounds are developed, there will be a harmonious scheme which will not be surpassed anywhere and he suggested that no time be lost in beautifying the grounds. No doubt the Dominion Government would aid in this by providing the choicest types of trees, etc. Much has been accomplished in recent years by furnishing places of health in the Province, and this has been brought about largely through the work of the Women's Institutes and the U.F.W.A. and other ladies' organizations. We now have ninety hospitals in Alberta, twenty-two of them being municipal hospitals. He looked upon the Wetaskiwin hospital and this occasion as a symbol of what can be done by Christian people when their energies and resources are brought together. It was also a symbol of those achievements that should be associated with social life. He intimated that upon the revival of business, the next movement would likely be the establishment of medical centres from which would radiate better health conditions. He concluded by complimenting the Board on the very fine equipment and efficiency of the new hospital, stating that the Wetaskiwin hospital would not take second place to any in the province.

Citizens Celebrated Hospital Opening

The citizens of this community celebrated the opening of the new Community Hospital on Tuesday evening, when a banquet was held at the hotel, sponsored by the Board of Trade and Kiwanis Club. A large number were present, and the occasion will be long remembered as a red letter evening in the history of this community. The principal speakers were Dr. McGugan of the Department of Health, and Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, Provincial Inspector of Hospitals. The first speaker was Mayor Somers, who took the opportunity of thanking everyone who participated in any way and assisted at the reception held during the afternoon, and he also desired on behalf of the community to publicly thank all the men who had anything to do whatever with the erection of the new building. He then introduced the architect and several of the sub-contractors who were present at the banquet. Every citizen was proud of the new hospital, and appreciated the asset it will be to the community. The new Community Hospital was built for the benefit of a hospital as a very reasonable charge. This dream had been fulfilled, as the new hospital would now give a most efficient service at a minimum charge. Ald. Ellis, chairman of the Hospital Board, was pleased that one phase of the work had been completed, and now the problem of administration must be met. The new hospital must be run as economically as possible so that no unnecessary burden would be saddled on the municipalities. The new hospital had a capacity of twenty-eight beds, and three more could be added if required, and the total cost was about $40,000. This is much less than the average cost of hospitals constructed in the Province, which have cost on an average of $2,000 a bed. The book accounts, furniture and fixture of the old hospital and between $11,000 and $12,000 in cash have been turned over to the new Board. The Scandinavians started the first hospital in Wetaskiwin, and have now completely furnished three wards in the new building. The Ladies' Aid deserve praise for all the donations and help they have given during the erection of the new building, as well as the case room, sterilizing room, curtains etc., and he sincerely thanked them on behalf of the Board for all the assistance they had rendered. He also thanked all members of the Board for their co-operation and assistance. Dr. McGugan referred to a hospital as an institution of service. The fundamental thing is medical staff and nurses and Wetaskiwin was very fortunate in this respect. He then referred to the many good physicians in the Province, and to the large number of people who were unable to receive medical attention. This gap must be bridged and at the present time a committee is studying to solve the problem, and it is expected they will submit some form of state medicine. In Alberta we have adequate hospitals and medical service, and in addition to the specialists, we must have the family physician, as he cannot be dispensed with, and any system (Continued on Page 5)

WETASKIWIN'S NEW COMMUNITY HOSPITAL.

Which was officially opened Tuesday afternoon by Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta. He was accompanied by Dr. McGugan of the Dept. of Health, and Dr. Braithwaite, Provincial Inspector of Hospitals. They all congratulated Wetaskiwin on now having a hospital which was second to none in the Province.

Weddings

LARSON-WOOD

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Immanuel Church on Tuesday, Nov. 15th, when Miss Daisy Wood of Westeros, and Gustaf Vernon Larson of Millet were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. M. Trendell, in the presence of immediate friends.

SMALTZ-NYBERG

On Monday afternoon, Nov. 14th, at the United Manse, the nuptials of Mr. Hugo Smaltz of Bashaw and Miss Freda Nyberg of Watergreen, were celebrated by Rev. A. R. Schrag. The young couple are well known in Watergreen district, where they were born and raised. They take up their residence on a farm near Bashaw.

POOL RECEIVED $15,000.000 TO STABILIZE WHEAT

Ottawa, Nov. 14. — Countering the lowest wheat prices in centuries and assisting the orderly marketing of Western Canada's crop, the government has made financial arrangements to promote hedging operations, Premier R. B. Bennett announced in the House of Commons today. "Commodity Stabilization" has been guaranteed against loss in financing hedging operations by the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited, the central selling agency of the three Prairie Provinces. It is improbable that Federal treasury will sustain any considerable loss through the guarantees, the Prime Minister said. The Dominion stands behind the banks to the extent of about $15,000,000 — the estimated cost of a five-cent bonus on this year's crop. Without hedging operations, prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange might have fallen below 40 cents a bushel, Mr. Bennett said. Circumstances combined to limit the organizations or individuals willing or capable of buying futures. Prices dropped on the exchange, markets became demoralized. The Dominion then stepped in, arranged the credit to enable the Central Pool to hedge. This had the effect of stabilizing the market and promoting the orderly marketing of the crop. It would not disturb the natural laws of supply and demand. Hedging was necessary for orderly marketing of the crop, Mr. Bennett said. When a buying agency purchased wheat from the farmers it protected itself by selling in the Winnipeg pit a corresponding amount of grain futures. Banks, advancing credit to buying agencies insisted on hedging. Under normal conditions speculators and investors bought the futures. Speculators practically disappeared and the operations of investors (milling companies) were restricted by the depression. The only organization left to make hedging possible was the selling agency of the Pool, supported by the government.

ESTIMATED THAT 2500 CUBANS WERE KILLED BY HURRICANE

Camsague, Cuba, Nov. 17.—The town of Santa Cruz del Sur became a gigantic funeral pyre today on the order of military authorities. The destruction of wind and water that also took the lives of probably 2,500 Cubans last week, was thus completed for the sake of sanitation. This action made it probable that the exact number of lives taken by the hurricane of last Wednesday will never be known. E. C. Janse left Wednesday morning for his home in Fort Madison, Ia.

Obituary

DAVID A. WARD

A gloom was cast over the community on Wednesday evening last, when it was learned that David Alexander Ward had passed away, after an illness of several months. The late Mr. Ward was born in Renfrew, Ontario, in 1867. In 1899 he was married to Ada La Farge Fraser, and came west to Winnipeg. The following year he came to Wetaskiwin where he took up his residence. In 1904 he was appointed as Dominion Lands Agent of the North West Territories, and in 1914 he joined the staff of the C.P.R. and faithfully carried out his duties until his illness made it necessary for him to retire. The funeral took place on Friday, services being conducted in First United Church by Rev. A. R. Schrag, following a private service at the home. A large number of friends were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect, and the choir of which he had been leader thirty years before in Knox Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member, rendered one of his favorite anthems, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." His chair was draped with his gown. He leaves to mourn his loss, his beloved wife and daughter, Mrs. Ward, and one son, Arthur, three brothers, James, of Rochester, N.Y., Campbell of Kingston, Ont., John of Renfrew, Ont. and one sister, Miss Marjorie Ward, of Renfrew, Ont., as well as a host of friends and acquaintances. The pall bearers were old time friends and fellow workmen namely, Messrs. H. J. Montgomery, Chas. Boyer, Wm. MacCallum, A. J. Taylor, Geo. Smith and E. D. O'Neill. Beautiful floral tributes were received from: The Family; Brothers and Sister; Wetaskiwin C.P.R. Employees; Choir of First United Church; Wetaskiwin Unit of Northern Alberta Pioneers and Old Timers' Association; Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Kelley; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Taylor; Mrs. Greiner and Valburga; Miss Ida Regan; Mr. and Mrs. A. Jensen; Mr. and Mrs. N. A. MacEachern; Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacEachern; Carol Jacobs. Mr. Wm. and Miss McCallum. The interment took place in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

PRAIRIES WILL ASK OTTAWA TO ASSUME MORE ON RELIEF

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—A united plea to have the Dominion Government take over a larger share of the cost of unemployment relief will be made by representatives of the three prairie provinces. Delegates from Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba left tonight for Ottawa. The party included Hon. E. A. McPherson, Provincial Treasurer of Manitoba; Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan, and Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture and acting premier of Alberta. The Dominion Government will be asked to pay 50 per cent of the cost of family relief instead of the former 33.3 per cent. Continuance this winter of the plan of financial assistance followed last year will also be urged. Under this plan the Dominion aided the provinces and the provinces, in turn, aided the municipalities. Myraan, Nov. 14.—Over 40 loads of wheat have been contributed by farmers here who have had an average crop in over that their less fortunate neighbors, who were hauled out, may have a season's supply of flour. On one day alone 30 loads of wheat were delivered to the flour mill here for this purpose, the farmers showing the spirit that takes the edge off the sharpness of hard times.

Town Topics

The Norwegian Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. E. Lyseng on Friday, Nov. 18th.

The government thermometer registered sixteen degrees below zero on Monday morning last.

Theo. Appel spent the week-end at home, returning to normal at Edmonton Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rae expect to leave this week for Florida where they will spend the winter.

The regular meeting of the W.I. will be held in the Club rooms on Thursday Nov. 24th, at 3 o'clock.

A general meeting of the curlers will be held in the waiting room of the curling rink on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Attention is directed to the change of date of Premier Brownlee's meeting at Malmo, which now will take place on November 25th.

Roy Ballhorn returned a few days ago from his hunting trip west of Rocky Mountain, and succeeded in bagging two fine animals.

Rev. A. R. Schrag and the choir of the First United Church exchanged services with Rev. Davies of the United Church at Ponoka on Sunday evening last.

Wetaskiwin Post Canadian Legion, held their annual dinner and get-together on Friday evening last, at the Strand Hotel, when a big celebration took place.

A. G. Gross who has been in the community looking after business affairs during the past month, left for his home in Puyallup Wash., on Wednesday evening.

Mayor J. W. Somers was in Edmonton last week attending the funeral of a brother, who had passed away, after an illness brought about by a wound received overseas.

The patients in the old hospital, who are well enough to be moved, were transferred to the new hospital on Wednesday. Mr. Moore's ambulance being used for that purpose.

Johnson Brothers who have leased the premises formerly occupied by Lowry Limited are moving their business to the new location, and are ready for business on Saturday. Attention is directed to their advertisement.

The bazaar and supper held by the W.A. of First United Church in the Elks' hall on Saturday afternoon last, was an outstanding success, as over $600 was realized, and the ladies have a number of articles on hand which were not disposed of.

The business of the Royal Market was purchased a few days ago by R. Thomson who took possession on Tuesday. He will have associated with him, F. Bachor who will have charge of the meat department. Both of these gentlemen were in business in Ponoka for several years, where they were quite successful, and we bespeak for the Royal Market under the new management, a continuation of the generous patronage it has enjoyed in the past.

The Golden Glow C.G.T. held their regular meeting on Monday, Nov. 14, at the home of Mrs. Colpitts. The girls decided to hold a Japanese tea on Nov. 26th, in the basement of the United Church. A sleighing party and toboggan hike were discussed, claiming the keen interest of every girl, but no definite date has been set. The girls then started to make a small child's costume, which is to be donated to the new hospital. After sewing busily for some time, the girls sang "Taps" and the meeting adjourned.

FIND YOUTH'S BODY
FROZEN IN AUTO
Edmonton, Nov. 12.—Sitting erect behind the steering wheel, the frozen body of David Hughes, 19, electrical apprentice at the University of Alberta, was found in his car 75 yards east of the Mayfair golf links entrance at 5:30 p.m. Saturday. The gasoline tank on the car had been drained dry, indicating that the youth had died from carbon monoxide fumes coming into the car while the motor was running.

Teachers' Convention Was Successful Event

The annual convention of the teachers of the Wetaskiwin Inspectorate was held on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 9 and 10. On Wednesday morning from nine o'clock to ten o'clock, registration took place in the Alexandra School. 125 teachers registered, afterwards meeting in the Presbyterian Church for the main part of the program.

As the president, Mrs. B. L. Freeman, was unable to be present, the convention opened with Inspector Scofield presiding.

The first session began with the singing of "O Canada," followed by the invocation by Rev. A. Appel.

Mayor Somers gave a hearty welcome to the teachers. He also invited them to visit the splendid new hospital which has recently been erected. The teachers were also welcomed here by Dr. McGugan, on behalf of the Public School Board, and by Mr. Greiner, who represented the Separate School Board. Miss L. Bergen and Mr. Aldridge expressed their appreciation on behalf of the teachers for the welcome extended.

Mr. Scofield then gave a very instructive address on "Making a Contact with the Individual Pupil." True teaching is individual teaching. To develop the mind and creative ability of the pupil, to develop his ability to think, to develop the natural endowments of the pupil to the highest degree should be the aim of every teacher. The personal touch of the sympathetic teacher is necessary particularly in primary grade and in dealing with backward pupils. The teachers should try to suit the education they provide to the capacity, interests, enthusiasms, and vocational outlook of each pupil. The highest type of teaching encourages the pupils to the highest development. The meeting was then given over to business. Mr. Kulak, principal of the Alexandra School, Wetaskiwin was appointed to act as president during the remaining session.

A Resolution Committee, a Nominating Committee and a Question Box Committee were then appointed. On Wednesday afternoon Mr. W. Wees, of the Camrose Normal School, gave an address on "Composition in the Intermediate Grades." In this address he dealt with the reasons for teaching composition, the means of motivating this subject, and methods of training the pupils in expressing their ideas and experiences. From this address the teachers derived a great deal of benefit and enjoyment.

Mr. Niddie then spoke to the teachers on behalf of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance. In his address he impressed the need for a teachers' organization, and told of the increase of membership in the A.T.A. to the extent of about one thousand members within the past year.

The teachers then divided into three sections for discussion. A Junior section with Miss B. Abbott as chairman; an intermediate section with Mr. Wright presiding; a Senior section with Mr. J. Kulak presiding. Many interesting and helpful papers were given by various teachers. On Wednesday evening, a very enjoyable banquet was held at the Strand Hotel, with H. L. Seymour as the principal speaker of the evening. Miss Robinson rendered a piano solo, and Mrs. A. Johnson a vocal solo, both of which were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Seymour took "The Beautiful School Ground an Asset to the Community" as the subject of his talk, and stressed the fact that the untidiness of school grounds might offset what is taught inside the school. It was therefore most important that the outside surroundings be as beautiful as possible. A school site should be at least five acres in area, which would enable the laying out of the grounds and making them a community centre which would be the cultural and recreational centre of the district. Outside toilets should be done away with as they are unsanitary and unsightly. School grounds can be greatly improved by horticulture. (Continued on Page 5)

Remembrance Day Fittingly Observed

Remembrance Day was fittingly observed on Friday last, when a service was held in the Audien Theatre, under the auspices of Peace Hill Chapter I.O.O.F. and Wetaskiwin Post No. 86, Canadian Legion. The ceremony was very impressive and the theatre was packed to the doors. At eleven o'clock, two minutes silence was observed.

The principal address was given by Rev. A. M. Trendell, honorary chaplain of the Canadian Legion. He referred to the feelings of sorrow and thanksgiving as we recalled those who had given everything in the Great War, and he hoped their memory will ever be kept fresh, that we will live lives of peace and that the fondest dreams of peace of those who made the sacrifice will come true. The peace conferences can do nothing unless there is a public sentiment for peace, and the people cannot sit still and have peace. We must realize before we have peace that we must have a world of Christian peace. This can be brought about only in one way, and that is by way of Christ, the Prince of Peace. The message from Flanders Fields asks us if these dear souls died in vain. Are we willing to accept the challenge and be prepared to take up the cross of sacrifice and live Christian lives? It is a duty owed the millions who made the sacrifice that we see to it that there will be no future wars.

Others taking part in the services were Rev. A. R. Schrag, who led in prayer, Rev. C. J. Mackay, who read the lesson, Mr. Pellett, who rendered a vocal solo, and a double mixed quartette was beautifully rendered by Messdames Montgomery, Altkinson, T. Johnson, W. Groves and Messrs. H. J. Montgomery, G. W. Hodson, N. A. MacEachern and C. S. Payne.

Following the service, a procession was formed, of the members of the Canadian Legion, Girl Guides, Brownies, Boy Scouts and members of the I.O.O.F. headed by the Wetaskiwin Band, all marching to the Cross of Sacrifice in the Memorial Park, where wreaths were placed in honor of those who sacrificed their lives in this cause of peace. After the sounding of the Last Post by Robert Hodson, the gathering dispersed.

The Canadian Legion wrote thanking the Co-Ed for donation towards the War Memorial. The report of Chief of Police McIlhenny for October was received and filed.

A copy of the Governor-General's address at the time of his recent visit here, which was photographed by Wain's Studio, will be procured for the Library.

Accounts to the amount of $965.28, together with firmen's payroll of $64.00 were passed for payment. By-law No. 743, appointing J. E. Fraser returning officer for the civic elections, was read three times and finally passed. The meeting adjourned.

tion Committee and a Question Box Committee were then appointed.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. W. Wees, of the Camrose Normal School, gave an address on "Composition in the Intermediate Grades." In this address he dealt with the reasons for teaching composition, the means of motivating this subject, and methods of training the pupils in expressing their ideas and experiences. Monetary Systems

Individuals the world over have always discussed money. They have always been interested in money. But the vast majority of people in years gone by never bothered their heads
very much about monetary systems, and how they worked. They knew that their country was on "a gold standard," but they did not trouble
to find out and understand just what that meant. They knew that Governments and banks issued paper bills and that these bills were money. But the main thing one and all were concerned about was how many of these bills they could get in return for the products or the services they had to sell, and how far those same bills
would go in buying the goods or services they found it necessary to buy.
Of the system behind the issue of these paper bills the average person knew little and cared less.

Today this indifference has disappeared like many other things in this rapidly changing world. People are still interested in money, how to get it, how to spend it, and what it will purchase for them. But they also want to know all about the system back of the issue, circulation, and exchange of money. The people of the world have been awakened with a jolt to a realization that the monetary system is not working as it should work in the interest and welfare of mankind, and we hear the opinion expressed on every hand money has become the master and not the servant of mankind; that instead of remaining a mere convenience in order to expedite the exchange of the world's commodities and services, it has itself become a commodity; and that being the case, the people who want to know who controls the production of that commodity—money.

Out of the confusion of ideas and suggestions and so-called solutions
one thing emerges. It is this: That no one nation can of itself remove the cause of its financial embarrassment and cure the malady from which it is suffering. There may be persons who honestly think that their petition will work where all others have failed; that a nation can, of itself, remedy its own ills, and that even a subordinate state or province
within a nation can do so, but all history proves the fallacy of any such notion.

In our dilemma the safe thing to do is to take a middle-course — not to take the dictum of the banker on the one hand, nor the theories of the radical on the other hand, but rather to weigh well the opinions and advice of impartial students of world economics, men trained and having experience in the weighing of causes and effects, men who have no axe to grind, but who desire that solutions
be reached based on solid facts and economic truth.

There are such men in most countries, and outstanding in this group is the world today is Professor Gustav Cassel, of Sweden. He is an original or not merely an exponent of a great deal of modern economic thought.
His counsel has been sought by central banks in many countries, by governments and by the League of Nations. His opinions cannot be lightly dismissed. He was invited to deliver the Rhodes Memorial Lectures this year at Oxford. There were three lectures dealing with the gold standard and the break-down of the world's monetary system. These lectures have now been published in book form.

One Canadian reviewer of this book says that Professor Cassel
nurses no words in these lectures.
There are none of the cautious
phrases and complicated qualifications to which one is accustomed in the writings of the economists. He speaks as one having authority and he evidently considers that his subject has been carried beyond the bounds of controversy. Professor Cassel shows that gold has ceased to impart value to money and that its automatic regulation of the value of money has given place to bank policy as a method of regulation. "For a true understanding of the monetary system,"

says Professor Cassel, "it is of fundamental importance that we should make ourselves familiar with the fact that a national currency never is anything else than a paper currency,
and that the maintenance of a gold standard only means that this currency, by a deliberate monetary policy,
is kept in a certain parity with gold."
He goes on to show that the value of gold itself is then determined by the monetary policy of the leading gold country, and he lays the blame for the great fall in world prices upon the monetary restriction policies of France and the United States.

Professor Cassel pokes fun at the apologetic old gentleman who will not entertain the notion of "managed money" and talk largely about "sound
money" by making it absolutely clear that we already have a managed money. In fact he attributes a great deal of our grief to the fact that not only is our money managed but that it has been very badly managed. After pointing out the amount of intelligent co-operation that is needed to make even a reformed gold standard work, he concludes that gold must, in the circumstances, be regarded as singularly unsuitable for use as a standard of value.

Professor Cassel complains of the loose and unintelligent use of the word inflation, which does not mean what the pious think it means. An expansion of the legal basis for money does not necessarily involve inflation. Anyhow he thinks that some inflation would be a good thing. "The best I think that the gold standard countries could do," he says, "would be immediately to start an inflation
of their currencies."

His views, as set forth in these lectures, may well receive the close study and consideration of all would-be monetary experts, currency reformers
and re-organizers of our banking system. They may find comfort and support in some things, but they will also be stirred away from many of the unfried theories that are now advancing and which this world authority exposes as utterly unsound, and which, if put into practice, would bring disastrous results.—Exchange.

Making a Contact With
the Individual Pupil

The following address was given by John Scofield B.A., Inspector of Schools, at the Convention held here last week, and it is of interest to teachers and parents alike, and everyone who studies it will be benefited.
A few years ago, if comparisons of elementary graded and rural schools were ever made, it was seldom, if ever favorable to the rural school.
Even today the great majority believe that pupils are most privileged who attend a graded school. The best educational opinion has not yet decided greatly in this regard, and the outstanding reason is that it recognizes the fact that true teaching is "individual teaching."

One main factor in making Henry Ford a great captain of industry was his wonderful system of factories. In each accommodating machines efficiently operated. Raw materials were taken in at one side and on the other the finished car came out into the open. The models were few in number, millions of them being alike to the smallest detail. For some years there appeared to be a danger that public opinion had the same standard for judging an educational institution
as used in the case of a factory—its mass production. An institution that trained 100% of its pupils to pass the prescribed examination through the lock-step grade system was considered well-nigh perfect. Though the danger spoken of is not entirely a thing of the past, the best authorities, including in many instances, discerning parents and trustees now believe that the main function of the school is to develop the mind and creative powers of the child, to give him an opportunity to acquire skill,
the ability to think precisely and to appreciate the highest that is possible for one of his ability. This may be quite different from ability to pass
it is the belief of the last mentioned judges that the type of school makes little difference; the pre-eminent factor in their opinion is the desirability of a capable teacher with an inspiration to rouse and encourage his pupils
to develop their natural endowments
to the highest degree.

To lead the pupil to make his greatest development, the fine personal touch of a sympathetic teacher is essential. Nowhere in the system is this more essential than in the primary grad. Here we have a class of beginners at school for the first day.
They are alike in that they are all ignorant of school work and are all about six years old, but they differ in height, weight, color or their eyes size of their feet and many other respects physically, and the psychologist tells us that in mental abilities and aptitudes they are no less unlike. By the end of the first year the brightest of your class will be able to read almost anything that interests him—it has been known that a pupil after one year's work was able to read the animal stories of Kipling or Seton-Thompson. The slowest will be able to read in a half-

year perhaps less than half the lessons of his primer. He will not be able to recognize many words
and when he meets a new one in reading it stops him. These pupils want the same at first, and have had equal advantages in school but how different they are now. What can be done?
Must we tell the slow child that he has failed and must repeat the work? Is that fair to him? Decidedly
"No," or only as a last resort.
Investigation has shown that if this is done the majority do poorer work the second and third years than in the first. It is all possible let him go on from where he now is, put him in senior first, or even call him Junior
if, but do not allow him to feel that he has failed completely—that would be a real disaster.

In intermediate grades individual differences are quite as pronounced.
A skillful teacher took her pupils on a field trip. They crossed a river on a ferry, observed and discussed many interesting things and on returning were asked to describe their trip in prose or verse. One wrote thus: We went down to the river and crossed
on the ferry; we climbed some hills;
we picked some flowers; we had a good time. A straightforward, clear statement of the main facts. Such a pupil, clear-headed economical of words, has possibilities of becoming a successful business executive.

The crocus said "My, my, cold,
I wish I had not been so bold.
But still I'm glad when I bring joy
To all my beauty I employ."
When all my beauty I employ."
How many of us could beat it? That boy is headed straight for a career
as a college professor, with his head
in the clouds and his pockets probably not too well filled.
Again we say "What a difference!"

Avoid common constipation
by eating a delicious
cereal. Laboratory tests show
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides
"bulk" to exercise the intes-

regularity. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that

tion, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal weight

of beef liver.

You will find it far more pleasant to enjoy a cereal

Much wiser too. Two table-spoonsful of Kellogg's ALL-

most types of constipation.

this skill, they acquired it at different rates, and how different are the possibilities shown to be bound up in their personalities. It is our work as teachers to aid the education we provide as best we can to the capacity, interest, enthusiasm and vocational outlook of each pupil we teach.

But you say "What of Our Course of Studies? Are we not to follow that?"
In answer I would say that 75% of your pupils will know at least the minimum requirements of the course
if well taught. Many will know much more, and a minority will know less than these requirements. We should use our Course of Study as a guide for the work of each grade, but the best judgment of the teacher must be used regarding what parts are to be emphasized and extended and what parts are to be covered in essentials only. It is wonderful what can be done for the general standing of a pupil if the teacher can get hold of him by showing a real interest in some hobby of his, or giving a judicious word of praise and encouragement in some subject in which he does well. The same is true of an entire class or school sometimes.

Much more frequent are transformations in the work of pupils whose main interests have been discovered
by a tactful teacher. These individual differences are partially looked after in the larger cities by their classes for retarded pupils and their opportunity classes.
Unfortunately errors are sometimes
made and these are serious. Dr.
Strayer refers to a pupil that came under his notice who had an I.Q. two years beyond the grade he was in and the T. was going to fail him—would not work, wouldn't hand in assignments—the class was so far behind him that he had lost all interest, the teacher constantly asking for work that meant nothing to him — he was hopeless and saw no way of escape.

2. A pupil of superior intelligence in a section designed for pupils below average.

3. A pupil of exceptional ability under age for grade, whose achievement test showed that she knew work

in some fields four years beyond prosent grade. These mistakes were grave errors in judgments and were corrected by diagnostic tests.

The science of education has advanced to such an extent in the last 25 years that a teacher has really little excuse for making such errors as those referred to. Careful and thorough diagnosis is the remedy. A good teacher before a class is an artist, and she who does the best job
makes use of all the scientific knowledge available.

Buckingham in his book "Research for Teachers," advises teachers that the best means of knowing the capacity of the individual pupil is the standard test. He suggests that you first use a survey test to find out the general standing of your class, and if given at different times will show
the progress made between tests. If possible you should test in at least three different subjects—arithmetic,
reading and writing would do well
for the first year.

To help the individual pupil, however, a close analysis of each paper is made; from it you can find out the point or process in which his weakness lies. Each paper is like an X-ray photograph, showing you where individual help is needed. The total score may not indicate weakness, but if you examine each answer
you will meet with many surprises.

In the case where there is an answer without solution an interview is needed. Some pupils have little knowledge of the uses of the processes in arithmetic—if "times" is mentioned in a question they multiply, if there are three or more numbers they add and so on.

Do not hurry these tests nor let them disrupt your regular work unnecessarily. Test on whatever subjects you have time for, assist as many pupils as possible, and pass on your findings to the next teacher.

No matter what the result of your diagnosis may be, there is still the need of the cheerful, sympathetic teacher. The highest type of teaching is that which encourages the individual to feel increased confidence and leads him on to successful endeavor. The unforgettable sin in a teacher is to teach a boy or girl to fail.

Doris stopped banging the keys of her typewriter and looked up.

"I'm awfully sorry, Bob," she said, "but—"

"Of course," he grinned down at her, a cheerful, care-free grin. "Some other time do." Casually he nodded and walked off.

Doris sat quite still for a minute, her eyes rather wistfully following his tall, broad-shouldered figure as he moved toward her door. Then she sighed regretfully and turned back to her typing. Very badly, indeed, she wanted to go to dinner with Bob Standish that evening, but—well, it was 4:45, and he hadn't seen fit to ask her until that minute, and—

Doris banged the carriage back savagely. Discipline, she decided, was what Mr. Standish needed. She had been seeing a good deal of him lately; more, she told herself, than was polite, with an acquaintance of only two months. Bob Standish would have to learn that she wasn't waiting on his ten-minute notices.

She was putting on her hat a few minutes later when Elda, the file clerk—she of the sharp tongue and the shrewd eyes—approached. Elda took Doris by both shoulders and shook her gently.

"Say, Miss Ritz," she drawled, "what's the idea of ducking the Standish date? That's the second time this week you've given him the 'I'm sorry but line.'"

Doris twinkled a smile at her. "Strategy, darling," she replied, patting a stray curl into place. "Mr. Standish really must get over the idea that I'm his for the asking at a minute's notice."

Elda's snort was expressive, if impolite. "In your hat strategy!" she retorted. "You'll wind up behind the eight ball playing hard-to-get with this hombre. I know the type. He's a man in a million, and you ritz him. Don't be an umchay, Doris."

But Doris only smiled and shook her head and was discreetly silent. She was right, she knew, but, of course Elda, wouldn't understand. She was a darling, but she had no finesse. Doris had a lot of faith in finesse.

So the next morning she greeted Bob with just the right amount of pleasant smile and just the proper inflection in her "Good morning, Bob." His brief "Morning, Do," matched her own in elaborate casualness, but Doris was not at all concerned by that. Presently, of course, he would come to her and ask for a dinner date a decent interval ahead, and then—oh, it would do him no end of good to think he had a little competition. It was beautiful strategy.

But day after day slipped by, and the inevitable reaction failed to appear. Every morning Bob Standish breezed into the office with the same light "Morning Do," and every evening he left her with an identical farewell, and between times paid no attention to her whatever. And Doris began to know a chill little fear that grew and grew, with each passing day, into a horrible certainty. She was deeply hurt, and miserably unhappy, and grudgingly determined not to let him know it.

Other "dates" she had then, but they were flat, insipid affairs. Always the memory of a dark curly head and a pair of steady grey eyes, and a thrilling deep voice was between her and the luckless he she happened to be with. And the days were very drab indeed.

At the end of three weeks Doris was forced to admit to herself that her strategy had back-fired. Bob, it seemed, wasn't going to ask her anywhere, ever, any more. To use Elda's inelegant expression she had "wound up behind the eight ball." Elda was inclined to be caustic.

"Well, Garbo," she flung at Doris one evening, "you got your notice all right, didn't you? You would be smart. You poor kid." And with unexpected gentleness she flung an arm around Doris' shoulders gave her a friendly squeeze, and carried her off to dinner at her home. Thereafter the shrewd Elda did her level best to snap Doris out of it, without any signal success. Working in the same office with a completely oblivious Bob, day after day, was torture. There was only one bright spot in a very dreary world: the concert season had opened; she would hear the C Minor symphony of Beethoven, which to Doris was musical paradise. She brightened perceptibly when Elda came in one noon with the news and two tickets. In the delight of anticipation, she almost forgot for the time, the aching emptiness in her heart.

Friday night, and a gay throng at the symphony. Walking up the boulevard in the crisp fall evening, Doris began to feel alive again; something of her old zest and gaiety bubbled up inside her.

"Oh, darling, look!" she gasped, as a sumptuous limousine drew up to the curb. "Formals! Let's watch them."

An obsequious doorman swept open the car door. A tall man in black-and-white talls, no less—stepped out, his back to the two girls, and reached out to hand down a radiant vision of blonde loveliness in an ermine wrap and a shimmery silver gown.

Something in the set of the masculine figure made Doris catch her breath. He turned, and her heart contracted suddenly. Bob! Bob Standish! Vaguely she was conscious of Elda's sardonic eyes, and the warm pressure of Elda's hand on her arm. Somehow she sat through the interminable concert. The music rolled over her in waves, unheard, unneeded. For the first time in her life she was unconscious of the magic of the C minor. Once she turned her head back and up, toward the boxes, but the sight of the black curly head so close to the smooth blond one hurt her, like a blow. In dumb misery she sat, until at last it was over, and she could creep away, away from people, away from Elda's brusque kindness, away from everything but her own unhappiness.

Doris had no heart for the office on Saturday morning. She evaded her mother's concerned questioning and remained in bed, a very forlorn, very tired little lady. Some little hope she had had, before last night, of having Bob back, sometime, but now—she was desolate.

It was mid-afternoon before she finally rose, and when the telephone rang she answered it listlessly, expecting Elda. She nearly dropped the phone at the sound of the thrillingly deep voice that answered her weak "Hello," a deep voice with a note of gentleness and concern in it she hadn't known before.

"Oh, Bob!" she finally managed to quaver. "Yes, y-yes. Oh, I'd love it, Bob. At 7. All right."

Dinner that night was bliss. And the long drive (not however, in the limousine) out along the lake was too perfect. Doris sat, silent, enraptured, afraid to speak lest she break some spell and find that she was dreaming, after all. Bob was silent, too; he seemed unusually grave.

At a spot provided, seemingly, by providence, he stopped and parked the car.

"Doris," he began, turning to face her, and meeting her eyes for the first time—"The rest was lost."

Very much later Doris raised her head from a very comfortable slumber.

"I saw you last night," she accused.

"I know you did," replied Bob, grinning. "I drew a ticket and a bawling out from a cop to make sure you would!"

"You—you what?" gasped Doris.

"Strategy, sweetheart," he told her, holding her tighter. "I was sure that I'm very busy but stuff was a line, so I just thought I'd outsmart you. I knew you wouldn't miss that concert, so I borrowed my brother's wife, and his car, and—well, there you are. The clothes, though," he added, "were my own."

THE C-G. THRESHING CREW

(Contributed)

It was in September, a morn bright and sound

When our threshing crew started out on its round.

They travelled to Carlson's, when, lo and behold,

They looked in the west—"high wind" it foretold;

So they jumped in their racks, drove out to the field,

No time to waste, must thresh a big yield;

They worked on till dinner; then stop they must.

For one could see nothing but small stalks and dust;

But after the hurricane the weather was fine,

They kept right on threshing, thus making good time.

So they rolled up their bedding, went east to the hills,

Stopped at A. Jensen's, his grain bins to fill.

From there to M. Sjogren, a bachelor sublime,

"He'll have a large crop, considering the twine."

These two jobs finished, then crossing the road,

They went to A. Erickson's to haul many loads;

Then on to C. Gustafson's, "He should have a long stop,

For he very seldom has had a good crop."

Then onward they journeyed to Carlson's, you know,

While in the midst of their threshing it snowed.

But the crew they were restless, and arose with a swing.

Let fire, set tables, while the kettle did sing;

And after awhile as it continued to snow,

They pulled down their caps, put their coats on, and so

Went down the straight path which led to the barn,

Hitched up their horses, said "Now home to the farm,

Where there's plenty of work to do early and late

And when it's fair weather, we'll thresh at great rate."

So now for a peep at our threshing crew,

They are a fine crowd, nor are they so few.

The first one is Carl, who is engineer, He hasn't much work, but he sure is sincere;

Next down the line comes Wally, separator man,

And he looks after his job as well as he can;

Now Henry and Axel are fine fielders too,

Who worked twice as hard as the rest of the crew;

Then first to the machine comes Alfred and Pete,

Their ability for work we need not repeat;

And driving on high comes Alfred and John,

Their face tells this story, "On, on, we must on!"

Now look and you'll see Carl and Ed. in the rear,

Just watch their large loads, how fast they appear;

But Ed, went to Peace River, a home-stand to take,

And Henry to town, some more bread he must bake;

But after they left us, came Holmfred and Bob,

And they, like the rest, surely hold down their job.

So here is a story of our threshers ten,

The Pigeon Valley school teacher and children gave a dance on Saturday night. Although a rather stormy night, there was quite a crowd in attendance, and a most enjoyable time was had.

Friends and neighbors from Falun, Lone Ridge and Pigeon Valley pleasantly surprised Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Steedman and family to a house warming. There was a very large crowd in attendance, and all took part in the amusements. A dainty luncheon was served at midnight by the ladies. Those present gave generously toward a presentation to them. Mr. O. Nelson presented it to them, and Mr. and Mrs. Steedman fittingly replied.

WHAT HAS SILK TO DO WITH FLOUR?

There is romance behind the scenes wherever food products are made. Manufacturing industries throughout the globe. Take for instance, the silk industry. Who would think that it plays such an important part in the milling of flour on the Western prairies? As a matter of fact, great modern mills like Robin Hood have in their store rooms thousands of dollars worth of a fine expensive silk fabric, known as "bolting silk."

This silk is used in an intricate system of silk sieves, or "bolters," that remove dust and fibre from the flour. These sieves are extraordinarily fine—some have more than 100 meshes to the inch. Only the pure flour granules pass through the sieves—the dust and fibre is taken off and used as hog feed. This process of "bolting" ensures that the housewife receives her flour clean and pure, free from dust and fibre.

Between the thumb and finger this fibre feels like lint from a carpet sweeper. When present in ordinary flours, it retards the action of yeast in the dough, resulting in small flat loaves, heavy in texture and unappetizing in flavor. It is explained that scientifically milled flours go farther in baking because they contain only clean, pure flour granules—no dust, no fibre. When mixed in the dough this flour responds to yeast gases readily and the bread rises high in the pans, producing more loaves of better bread.

To guarantee the Western Canadian farmer's wife that she will get good bread, modern plants like Robin Hood carry heavy investments of bolting silk grown on their sieves. The raw silk is woven in Italy, shipped to Switzerland where it is woven in the peasant homes, then shipped by water and rail to the world famous flour mills at Moose Jaw, Calgary and Saskatoon. The cost of bolting silk is only one of the extra items of expense which modern mills must pay if they are to produce the clean, pure flour that discriminating housewives demand.

TO OUR READERS

Right now we ask you to turn to the address label on your paper and note the expiry date of your subscription. If you find that your subscription has expired we ask that you send in your renewal as soon as possible. You might think the amount is small and it can wait for a while yet, but from our point of view it is different. We have a large number of arrears of subscriptions on our books and the amount of money involved runs to a considerable figure. It is expensive to send out accounts and if you are in arrears you can help us out by sending in your renewal. Remember, we are giving absolutely free, one box of Christmas cards to every subscriber paying one year in advance.

Regina, Nov. 14.—Qu'Appelle Roman Catholic Indian school at Lebret, one of the largest of its kind in America is a mass of blackened ruins the result of a fire that started Sunday morning. The loss is estimated at $250,000. No one was injured.

Villeneuve, Nov. 14.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Roman Catholic church here Sunday morning, causing loss estimated at $15,000. Nothing was saved from the flames which spread rapidly through the wooden structure.

GWYNNE

Little Gerald Gillespie is home from the hospital. He was very sick last week, but we are glad to hear that he is improving.

Carl Nygren and Victor Larson returned from a hunting trip last Tuesday, and each brought back a deer. Percy Doel, Harvey Williams, Ben Waters and Dick Rupertus returned from their hunting trip on Monday. Cold but happy, having bagged their limit, and had a truck load of winter meat—a moose and deer each.

KNOB HILL

Threshing, which was well under way in this district, has been held up with the recent snow storm.

Miss Jessie Pearson spent the weekend at the home of her sister, Mrs. L. Hendrigan of Winfield.

E. L. Chinnell returned home last week from Melville, Sask.

Miss Merrill De Witt has returned home from Minnisk where she has been working the past few months.

Newton and Edgar Ellason were home for the week-end.

NAVARE

The schools opened at 9:30 Monday morning, and will continue to do so during the winter season.

Plans are under way for the school Christmas programs, parts are being assigned to the children, and the actual practising will begin in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dewald are being congratulated upon the arrival of a fine baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Wagar and family of Wetaskiwin, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Nelson.

Several people from this district attended the opening of the new hospital in Wetaskiwin on Tuesday.

Quite a number of young people from the Bears Hill district are taking part in the program to be held in the Swedish Lutheran Church, Wetaskiwin, on Friday evening in aid of the Old Folks' Home.

T. C. Malmas and Miss Anna Malmas spent a few days of this week in Edmonton, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berry. Mr. and Mrs. J. Shantz entertained about thirty-five friends at an enjoyable party last Friday evening. A pleasant time was spent at cards and dancing, a dainty lunch being served at midnight.

COUNTRIES OFF GOLD STANDARD LOST MORE THAN THOSE ON

All the world lost trade in 1932. Those countries that have stayed on the gold standard have lost a great deal more than those off gold. According to the British Board of Trade table United States has been the biggest loser of all, showing a decline in exports of 68.2% within the first half of 1932 compared with the corresponding period of 1929. Canada is among the highest losers with a decline of 61.4 per cent. The United Kingdom's decline is 47.3 per cent. Comparison is also made between the first half of this year and the corresponding period of last year. United Kingdom exports dropped 12,100,000 Pounds, while the United States' exports dropped 97,000,000 Pounds. Canada's exports dropped 15,100,000 Pounds, while Australia actually had an increase of 3,800,000 Pounds.

Raymond, Nov. 12.—The best harvest is over. Nearly 350,000 tons of sugary roots have been dug in the best fields of Southern Alberta, and all of them have been either delivered to the factory or stored in the silos on the farms.

COMMUNICATION

[We do not necessarily endorse the sentiments advanced by this or any other correspondent under this heading.—Ed.]

At the request of Mr. B. D. Howatt, ex-Mayor, we have been requested to publish the following letters, referring to the old hospital building: Edmonton October 31, 1932.

B. D. Howatt, Esq.,
Wetaskiwin, Alberta.

As requested I am attaching hereto, for your information, copy of a memorandum from Dr. E. A. Braithwaite in regard to the circumstances under which the building, which had been in use for hospital purposes in Wetaskiwin for a number of years was condemned on account of the fire risk.

Yours very truly,

M. R. DOW,
Deputy Minister of Health.

Dr. M. R. Dow,

Deputy Minister of Health.

Re Wetaskiwin Hospital
I have been requested by Mr. B. D. Howatt who is on the Hospital Board for information as to under what circumstances the Wetaskiwin Hospital was condemned as a fire trap. I have told him that due to my annual inspections I have repeatedly reported this hospital as unsuitable, as you cannot carry a stretcher into the rooms. There were too many stairs to carry a patient down on a stretcher in case of fire.

I believe due to the above report you instructed me to go down with Mr. Moore of the Insurance Department on June 12th, 1931, and that is the reason the hospital was finally condemned.

In addition to my inspection the Fire Insurance Department sent their own inspector down who reported it as a serious fire hazard.

Respectfully submitted,
E. A. BRAITHWAITE,
Medical Inspector of Hospitals.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Inga Magnhild Moen, who passed away November 12th, 1930.

"There's someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;

There's someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content."
Ever remembered by loving Mother, Dad and Brother.

planting of trees, shrubs and flowers. Heavy planting in front would be had. There should be just enough to take away the harsh appearance. On account of the northern climate, hardy varieties should be used. Evergreens should be foundation trees, while deciduous trees are also good, and bright is a thing of beauty. For shrubs, the honeysuckle, golden elder and dogwood were recommended; and for flowers, peony makes a hardy perennial, while tulips, iris, tiger lilies and gladioli were favorites. It depended largely upon the teacher whether the school grounds would be beautiful or not, as he or she must invariably make arrangements for the planning and planting. The speaker concluded with the quotation "There is no wealth but life. Think of all things worth while, and let us leave the world better because we have lived in it."

John Scofield, inspector of schools, was the chairman, and after the banquet, cards and dancing were enjoyed. The Thursday morning session opened with a discussion led by Mr. Wees on "The Problem Children in the School." Many questions were brought up and discussed, and this discussion was a very helpful one to many of the teachers.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS HOLD SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

The Edmonton District High School Teachers' association held its annual convention Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The secretary of the convention was T. Fletcher of Wetaskiwin.

The elections following recommendations by the nominating committee resulted as follows: President W. Hayhurst, Vegreville; vice-president, W. Kostash, Willingdon; secretary, treasurer, Lewis Evans, Minburn; directors, Miss A. Irvine, Wetaskiwin; L. Robbins, Waskatenau; and R. J. L. Wright, Clyde.

A resolution was submitted and passed urging the provincial government to proclaim the new contract form along with the board reference legislation approved by the 1932 legislature. A motion was also passed urging the next gathering be held at the same time and in the same place as the Edmonton city high school teachers' convention, so that there may be an interchange of delegates and addresses.

GRID FINAL POSTPONED

With snowshoes and sleds the favorite mode of transportation and furnace stoking the popular sport of the week-end, the northern Alberta senior high school rugby final between Victoria and Wetaskiwin was postponed from Saturday afternoon until such time as the weather permits a playoff—if at all.—Journal.

LIBRARY NOTES

One of 1932's most successful novels is "The Harbinger" by William McPee. It is filled with glamorous adventure told in an unusual way.

A new Western story by B. M. Bower is "Rocking Arrow." A shipwrecked cowboy, returning from the gold fields, cast ashore on a lonely stretch of Oregon coast, is rescued by a family of questionable reputation, and championed by the daughter Jackie. Our hero recovers and returns to the home ranch to find that his father has been murdered by "persons unknown." When this mystery is solved and all debts settled he goes back for the girl.

"The Fourth Lovely Lady" by Theres Benson. What was to be done about Smiff? For the first time in her life no one needed her. She was free large, and no longer young. Romance and income had passed her by. She was generous to a fault. Still you could never be sure about Smiff. Three lovely ladies put their heads together. But they reckoned without the fourth. No vine-clad cottages, no seashore resorts, no sponging off rich relations for her. She had her own ideas about life and love and money-making—and were they original! They gasped when the fourth lovely lady calmly announced "I don't mind telling you what I am going to do, only I'm afraid you won't like it when you hear it. I'm going to become an adventuress."

Several other new books just out have been added to the library straight from the publishers in the East.

to be successful, must give the taxpayer complete freedom of choice. The solution of the problem lies in some form of insurance, a system which must cover a long period of time, with a small cost to the individual. The people must have adequate medical care and sooner or later, if parents are faced with cases of emergency, which invariably are quite expensive. When the people of Alberta rise and demand a public medical system it will be brought about.

W. H. Odell, who presided introduced Dr. Braithwaite, stating that he had been a resident of Edmonton since 1892. The doctor referred to different phases of hospital work that had occurred to him in his visits of inspection throughout the Province. He expressed surprise at the design of Wetaskiwin's new hospital, which had been furnished with the latest appliances in every department, and he would report to the Department that Wetaskiwin now had a hundred per cent hospital. The sterilizer had a self-registering chart, which would be a protection as it could prove that all the instruments had been sterilized at a certain time, in case legal proceedings were taken against the hospital board. The new building was almost perfect as a fire hazard. The doctor then gave reasons why he had condemned the old hospital building. He explained the three hospital systems in Alberta, which are known as the approved, municipal and community, and he cautioned the Board on the administration of the new hospital, stating that too many cooks spoil the broth. He then referred to the place the hospital had in the community and to the benefits the public would receive if they took advantage of the services offered. During the past twenty-five years the average hospital days in Alberta had been reduced from twenty-one to twelve. He concluded with the slogan "Get together, keep together, sink all jealousies and all work together to make the hospital a success."

Mrs. McDermid presided at the piano and Stewart Campbell rendered a solo and encore, which were heartily applauded.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire through the columns of The Times, to express our deep appreciation of the kindness shown to us during our recent bereavement.

The Bill giving effect to the trade agreements made at the Imperial Conference has passed its second reading, and the House is in Committee on the details. The debate on the second reading afforded an opportunity for a new war between Party leaders. Mr. Bennett had severely castigated the Leader of the Opposition in his closing speech on the resolution to ratify the agreements. Mr. King took the opportunity afforded by the second reading to reply exhaustively. Mr. Coote and Mr. Garland took advantage of the same opportunity to explain why some of our Group refrained from voting at all on the resolution. They said that the Government, having refused to disclose the details of the agreements before voting ratification, made it impossible for independent Members to cast an intelligent vote, arguing that it was impossible for anyone to know whether they were for or against something, the substance of which was unknown. Further, they said that while their inclination was to vote against the treaty, in view of the information at hand to do so might indicate to Great Britain that we were opposed to preferential trade, which we are not; so in view of these considerations it was thought better to refrain from voting until the second reading of the Bill, and then to make another appeal to the Government to postpone second reading until the terms of the treaty were known and discussed in Committee. The Government still refused to consider this method of procedure, whereupon those of the independent Groups who did not vote on the treaty resolution voted against the second reading of the Bill.

The discussion in Committee has centered around three main points. The first—Will Canadian wheat shipped to United States ports and stored there for some time prior to being shipped to its destination enjoy the benefit of preference in Great Britain? It is more or less believed that consignments to Great Britain through United States ports will have the preference, but it is very doubtful whether wheat that is stored in United States ports will come within the benefits of the treaty. In any case,

Banish Bothersome Boils By Cleansing the Blood

Boils are caused by impurities in the blood and are simply an evidence that bad blood is circulating through the system and coming to the surface.

The one way to get rid of this painful blood disease is to give the blood a thorough cleansing by using Burdock Blood Bitters, which removes the foul material and thereby banishes the boils.

Mr. John Horbay, Hafford, Sask., writes:—"For over two years I was troubled with boils. I tried all kinds of medicine without any result. A friend told me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. Just one bottle and the boils were all gone."

back to the Treasury Board deposits them there as security, and issues its own notes, thus making its position more secure by the increase of its own note issue to meet the demands of the public. At the same time, the Government gets money, and inflation has been penetrated, and Mr. Bennett still calls it "sound money" because the people haven't got any of it.

Mr. Bennett's inflation resulted in the immediate drop of the dollar in New York and a raise in the price of wheat. But it will not result in increased consumers purchasing power directly since it merely makes more public credit available to the banks. The banks, however, will be unable to lend and increased credits because would-be borrowers cannot offer assurance of paying back the loan when the goods upon which the loan would have to be made are sold at present prices.

Mr. Bennett's declaration that he still adheres to sound money means just as much as when he declared that he was going to stay with the gold basis. He neither has gold basis nor sound money, his declaration notwithstanding; but if he still insists on calling the sort of money we do have "sound" money, then we must demand that we get "honest" money instead. "Sound" money means, according to facts, that the dollar, which equalled a bushel of wheat in 1928 now equals three bushels of wheat, so that the farmer who borrowed a dollar in 1928, which was worth a bushel of wheat must now give three bushels of wheat to pay it back. "Honest" money would mean that a dollar would equal the same amount of wheat now that it did in 1928.

It is expected that the Farmer Members will force discussion of the agricultural situation, and will urge as soon as possible some action on the part of the Government to relieve the farmers. It is probable that a resolution will be moved on going into ways and means, and will be in effect substantially as follows: "That the agricultural industry during the past two years especially has been drained of its very life, and is now at the point of desperation, and that it is much easier for Canada to survive without a few dozen bondholders than it is to survive without the agricultural industry, but that the deflation policies of the Government protects the bondholders while starving the population and ruining the basic industry of the Dominion." It will, therefore, be urged that the Government meet the present agricultural emergency by:

(a) Paying a bonus on all agricultural production sufficient to bring the farmer's income at least to equal his costs.

(b) The cancellation of all interest charges and the reduction of debt to the same ratio with the present prices as the debt when contracted had to prices.

(c) To issue Dominion of Canada Notes direct to the farmers as payment of such bonuses as may be granted.

And finally if the Government, refuses these suggestions, it would be demanded that they find other policies adequate to the emergency, and put such policies into effect at once.

It is very probable also that Labour will have a field day for the discussion of unemployment. It is expected that Mr. Heaps will introduce the motion. The date of adjournment will depend to a great extent upon how long these resolutions will occupy Parliament.

Any good druggist can supply you.

U.F.A. WINS IN CAMROSE

In the face of a vigorous attack by both political parties upon the organization and the U.F.A. Government, Chester A. Ronning, the U.F.A. candidate, was elected in the Camrose Provincial by-election by a substantial majority. The result is gratifying evidence of the continued confidence of the farm people in their ability to conduct their own affairs of citizenship in their own way, and a tribute to the excellent candidate and to Premier Brownlee and the U.F.A. administration.

The result was evidence also of the rapid growth among the electors of a belief in the necessity for radical social policies. Mr. Ronning, during the campaign, frankly confessed his conviction that it is impossible to raise the economic position of the masses of the people permanently except by fundamental social reconstruction, and he expressed his firm adherence to the principles embodied in the program of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. That is an additional reason for regarding the result as gratifying.

FRIENDSHIP

If you walk as a friend you will find a friend wherever you choose to fare; If you go with mirth to a far strange land, you will find that mirth is there;

For the strangest part of this queer old world is that like will join with like; And who walks with love for his fellowman, an answering love will strike.

If you walk in honor then honest men will meet you along the way; But if you are false you will find men false wherever you chance to stay. For good breeds good and bad breeds bad, we the met by the traits we show;

Love will find a friend at the stranger's door where hate will find a foe.

And an hour of hate or an hour of shame can ruin a life of toil; And though to the utmost ends of the earth your duty may bid you fare, If you go with truth and a friendly heart, you will find friends waiting there.

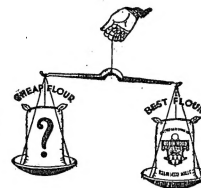

For each of us builds the world he knows which only himself can spoil;

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

HEALTHY OLD AGE

Our true age cannot be determined by counting the number of birthdays we have celebrated. The condition of the body reveals its real age. Some are old at forty others are young at sixty. It all depends on how the body machinery has stood up under use and resisted the abuses to which so many of us subject it.

Certain factors contribute to attaining to a ripe old age. Heredity plays a part. In general those who live to advanced years have a line of ancestors who lived far beyond the average age.

As a rule, those who pass the four score mark are thin people. Thinness which is the result, not of starvation, but of moderation in food and drink, is the most important factor in, adding to the number of years and in securing a healthy old age.

The tendency is to eat more food than is required. Young people are more active, and they use up the food they eat. Older people become less active and as they cannot use what they eat, they put on extra weight, and so handicap themselves.

We begin life on the simplest of diets. Older advised that, after the age of sixty, we should simplify the diet by decreasing the amount of food. In the later years of life, back to the simple diet of a child.

The older person is well advised to avoid complicated and highly seasoned dishes, to eat only simple foods. Milk is a valuable food throughout life and should be used regularly and freely by older persons. Without becoming "fussy" the older person should recognize any foods which cause discomfort and avoid them. The actual amount of food required varies with the individual.

No one should eat when tired. A short rest before meals is a good habit, it as it brings one to the table free from fatigue. However, some food—such as a hot drink at bedtime, helps many older people to sleep. A glass of milk by the bedside which can be sipped if they awaken in the early morning, will often send them off to sleep again.

The average number of years we live has been considerably increased, due to the application of our knowledge concerning the prevention of disease and to better methods for treating the sick. The health which older people enjoy depends almost entirely upon their own habits of living. As far as we know the most important habit for living in old age is moderation in eating after the age of forty.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

BOY SCOUTS PREPARE TO SPREAD CHRISTMAS CHEER

Below is a copy of a letter which the Boy Scouts Association is distributing and which is inserted here in case there should be some families who will not have received one.

Boy Scout Association, Millet, Alta.

Dear Sir or Madam:

This is to advise you that the Millet Scouts have started a Repair Toy Shop and would be very pleased to receive any broken or disused toys for repair and distribution.

The aim is to collect as many toys as possible, then the Scouts meet, repair and repaint all toys, or make them over as the case may be, and distribute them to different families in different districts where there is very little likelihood of the kiddies receiving Christmas gifts, and so make a little happiness in various homes that otherwise might have nothing to make the kiddies joyful at Christmas.

All toys etc., can be left at my office and will be very welcome.

Yours sincerely,

EDGAR MOORE,

Scoutmaster, M. 1st.

The Scouts will also be very glad to receive clothing for distribution.

This is a very worthy cause and we hope it will receive the hearty support of all families throughout the community. Undoubtedly there are many homes where it is a struggle to keep body and soul together and where it will be impossible to give the children the little things that make for happiness at Christmas.

It is a pitiful thing to think of children who will find their stockings empty on Christmas morn. For few of them will understand why Santa passed them by. So let us all do our bit to help the Boy Scouts in their praiseworthy efforts to spread some ray of sunshine into the hearts of all kiddies within their reach.

MILLET LOCAL NEWS

The Millet Ladies' Aid will hold their December meeting in the church.

Elmer Olsen is at the present time employed at the Wetaskiwin Furniture Exchange.

F. J. Higginson left on Saturday for the Royal Show at Toronto, in charge of the Albert poultry exhibit.

Armistice Day was very quiet in town, as many people were away in Wetaskiwin, where they joined the Remembrance Day exercises.

Mrs. H. F. Pendleton of Loughede, spent a few days visiting her daughter Miss Leola Pendleton, also visiting friends in the Millet district.

Mrs. Larry Page was a guest at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Doanes, on Thursday, returning to her home in Leduc the same evening. Thelma and Orville remained until Sunday.

The Misses Muriel Aikens and Irene Kent spent a couple of days at the Wetaskiwin hospital last week, where they both underwent a tonsil operation. Both are recovering nicely.

Among those home from school for the holiday were Misses Gladys Kerr, Gwen and Evelyn Christie, Margaret Von Arx, and Messrs. Lorne Carney, Walden Smith and Adrien Kent.

James Anderson, who is attending University at Edmonton, was visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Anderson over Remembrance Day and the weekend, and also his sister, Mrs. E. B. Johnson.

The Literary Society of the local High School has made plans to devote every second Friday from two o'clock until school closes, to different varieties of programs. Next Friday a play will be staged.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Joe Day moved on to their farm south of Millet little Patsy Day has been quite ill, necessitating the calling of the doctor. We are glad to hear that she is now on the road to recovery.

Several groups of hunters have returned, among them being Messrs. Fred and George Easterbrook, Rowley L. Blize, Chester Iller, Fred Cheneaux, Joe Albright and Ted Anderson. All report very good luck.

Rev. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Miss Doris Phillips, Mr. Johnny Smith and little Esther Hillman were among those attending the wedding of Miss Annie Smith at Gwynne on Friday. Rev. Smith was the officiating clergyman.

The crossing south of town is getting most as bad a reputation for accidents as the famous "Death Corner" near Edmonton, but we are glad to relate, there have not been so many casualties. Another car jumped the ditch one night last week, breaking through L. P. Wright's yard fence and damaging the car, but injuring no one.

At their meeting last week, the members of the W.A. made final arrangements for the forthcoming sale of work. The Rev. A. Murphy has promised to attend, and although a definite answer has not yet been received, it is hoped that the Rt. Rev. C. E. Burgett will be present to open the sale at 2:30. There will be a good variety of articles for sale.

Obituary

The funeral of Elsie Mabel Peterson took place on Nov. 10th at 2 o'clock in her home. She passed away on Nov. 8th, after a week's illness. She prayed to go home to God and believed she would get her sight back when she was called home. She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother, three brothers, John, Albert and Carl, and six sisters, Mrs. Freda Rasmussen, Mrs. Alice G. Thern, Mrs. Helma A. Ackerman, Emma, Helen and Ruth Peterson. The pallbearers were Messrs. O. G. Rasmussen, G. Thern, A. Ackerman and E. Jensen.

Rev. P. M. Meyer conducted the service. The interment took place in the Crooked Lake cemetery.

HILLSIDE

J. O. Harvey, who was the Millet delegate to the Grain Growers' Convention in Saskatoon, returned home on Saturday.

Miss Leila Marr returned to her school at Sunbury, after attending the Teachers' Convention in Wetaskiwin, and spending a day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Marr.

E. R. Hoskins who has spent the past eight weeks in the military ward of the University Hospital, has returned home.

The school was closed for two days last week while the teacher, Mr. Aldridge, attended the Convention in Wetaskiwin.

The "Westerners" of the U.F.A. are having a social in the school house on Saturday evening. This is not a money-making affair, and all are welcome. Come early and have a good time.

L. W. Murr finished threshing last week and has pulled his machine in for another year.

Next month the three locals are putting on a one-act play and the local getting the lowest marks will have to put up the treats. We understand the Juniors are working hard to get first in this competition.

The Junior U.F.A. are holding their regular meeting in the school house on Friday evening.

Miss L. Holt of "Spruce Grove Farm," Millet, has taken up her residence with Mrs. H. G. Young.

The U.F.W.A. held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. F. Loader. All members were present. The meeting opened with singing the Glory Song, and the roll call was answered with "Pive books I would take with me if I went alone to a desert island." Current Events were prepared by Mrs. Deering and given by Mrs. Harvey. Mrs. Runtz reported on "Peace." This was followed by an impromptu debate "Resolved that art should be omitted from public school curriculum." While all members did not take part in the debate, they enjoyed it, and there were just as many for as against the question debated.

A social hour followed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. Hoves in December.

SMALL FISH IN POOL MADE BY WELL NEAR NEW NORWAY

Fish of the minnow type are to be seen in the pool formed by a flowing well on a Hudson's Bay quarter of land across the road from the farm of J. V. Butler, three miles west and one mile south of New Norway. The Butler boys secured permission to drill a well on the land with a view to securing water to flood a skating rink. The well was drilled about two years ago and recently numbers of minnows have been noticed. There are several flowing wells on the flat to the east of the property mentioned although so far is known they do not produce fish as well as water—Canadian.

MILLET LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. Ida Just spent a few days in Edmonton last week visiting friends.

Miss Margaret Forbes left on Thursday for her home at Wetaskiwin.

Mrs. Williams of Wetaskiwin, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs over the week-end.

Young Eric Gilling has recovered from his recent injuries sufficiently to be back at school, having returned on Monday of this week.

Mr. Wm. Elders spent Remembrance Day among friends and relatives here, returning to Wetaskiwin on Saturday, where he is at present employed.

Keith Scott of Edmonton, visited over the week-end with his brother, Stanley Scott also making a short call at the home of his uncle, Harry Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Cormie of Edmonton, were callers at the Higginson home on Saturday, en route for Calgary, where Mr. Cormie will see to assembling the poultry for the Royal Show.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker and son Donald, spent the holidays in Edmonton, when they were guests of Mrs. Parker's parents. Mr. Parker attended the Teachers' Convention while in Edmonton.

About thirty-two Scouts and Cubs went to Wetaskiwin, and took part in the Armistice Day services there. They carried themselves very well, and Mr. Moore was very proud of them and their conduct.

Mr. Starr Beck, who has been employed during the summer and fall on the mainline on the Edmonton-Calgary highway, left on Monday for the territory north of Cold Lake to engage in trapping for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moe and daughters Joyce and Lois, accompanied by Mrs. J. West, motorized to Maltstone Sask., on Armistice Day, to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Newland. Mrs. West remained for a two weeks visit at her brother's home.

Remembrance Day service was held on Sunday last, when a large congregation was present. The Lessons were read by Mr. Bear and Mr. Clarke. Mrs. Bear sang "God of our Fathers," whilst the Vicar conducted the service and gave a most helpful and suitable address, concluding his discourse with a very touching story of the visit of the Prince of Wales to one of the smaller hospitals for maimed soldiers in England, during the war.

HOW UTAH PEOPLE ARE MEETING THE DEPRESSION

Reports from people who have been down to Utah are filled with statements about their National Distributing System there, whereby farmers and producers generally are overcoming the depression and scarcity of money. They have organized what they call a National Distributors Association, which is a sort of buying and selling of all kinds of commodities. Any person can become a member. Farmers, for example, who are members are entitled to bring into the central office any produce they may have for sale, such as potatoes, beef or fruit, and receive "scrip" for it, and this scrip is good for the purchase of anything else found within the storehouse. In this manner exchange is effected, and hundreds of people are finding it possible to finance themselves on the scrip they receive for the products they have to sell, when if they had to sell lamb at 3 cents, or potatoes at 7 cents per hundred pounds, and then pay usual prices for things they want well, they simply could not do it. The idea has grown all ready to include certain stores, amusement houses and even restaurants, and the proprietors of such places, becoming members of the N.D.A. are ready to accept scrip for their services or goods, and in turn are able to buy goods needed from the N.D.A. with the scrip they have received. It is thus possible for the members of the N.D.A. to attend picture shows, have restaurant meals, buy goods out of stores, and carry on a real exchange of products to the advantage of all concerned.

Since these Canadians have returned there is a demand being made by several of them for some such organization here. In Utah they have bi-monthly meetings of all members of the N.D.A. and each month the books are audited, and every two months the manager of the association is elected or re-elected as the case may be. Certain it is that conditions here warrant such an organization, and in fact some attempt at its function is actually being worked out by many people today. To make it legal and effective, a bona fide organization might be effected here, so the people argue who have had first hand contact with it, and a logical place to start it operating is in Cardston.

Why not call a meeting of those interested and see what might be done here to relieve the situation? All it takes is the initiative on the part of some one person. The News offers its columns to anyone who cares to air their views regarding it. —Cardston News.

ALL HUMANITY INTERESTED IN NEW PROPOSAL

London, Nov. 14.—The British proposals for suspension of British war debt payments due to the United States Dec. 15, made public in Washington, was described by government officials as a businesslike move in the interests of the whole world.

The British government considered that an announcement that Britain had started negotiations with the United States for final settlement of the war debts and that, until these negotiations are concluded, no further payments will be made, would have the salutary effect of stabilizing world confidence and promoting recovery of trade.

While taking this world viewpoint, British sources were emphatic in professing no united front has been formed by European debtor nations for pressing the war debts issue with the United States.

BRITISH WHEAT GROWERS
GUARANTEED $1.25 A BUSHEL

The British wheat growers are guaranteed the price of $1.25 per bushel on a maximum of 27,000,000 hundredweight of wheat under the British Wheat Act of 1932. Under the terms of this act growers are free to sell their wheat at what price they can get for it and millers can buy any wheat they please at what price they can get it for. After the entire domestic crop is sold the domestic producer will receive a subsidy equal to the difference between the average price paid by the millers for domestic wheat purchased and the standard price established by the commission.

STATE OF KANSAS
DRIEST IN MANY YEARS

Information from Kansas, the greatest wheat producing state in the U. S. A., is to the effect that this fall has been the driest for many years. Private reports state that winter wheat acreage has been much curtailed, that considerable of the area sown has been put in negligently and that a severe winter is almost certain to cause heavy damage.
